Four Thousand Seekers After Civil Service Blanks Raise Row.

Break Down Iron Railing in Office of Commission and Call for Police Becomes Necessary.

There were lively times yesterday around the old red brick building which is occupied by the Civil Service Commission.

May 1 is the only day in the year on which applicants for appointment as laborers or charwomen can obtain application blanks at the commission's offices, and early yesterday morning a crowd of men and women, white and black, gathered outside the commission's building.

J. S. Jamison, an examiner of the commission, stood with a bunch of application blanks in his hand at the head of the steps leading to the entrance of the building. In a moment he was overwhelmed by a struggling mass of human beings, each one of them clamoring for an application blank. It became necessary to call out the reserves, the nearest police station, and when these arrived the crowd of office seekers had become a demonstration mob. After some difficulty the police managed to form the people in line, and there was a waiting order. The first applicant was a negro woman, who became obstreperous and said unkind things to a policeman.

The pressure of the crowd became so great that an iron railing in front of the building was broken and a big section of the brick coping on the outer stairway was knocked down.

Only about 50 appointments of laborers and charwomen are made by the commission in Washington in a year, and not nearly enough application blanks to furnish everybody who was there were ready. Only 3,000 blanks had been provided. When these were exhausted those who had not obtained the coveted pieces of paper made an awful row, and the police had a good deal of trouble in quelling the disturbance. At least 5,000 persons tried to obtain the application blanks.

Invited to Talk on Flag.

Mrs. Isabel Worrell Ball has been invited to Lansdowne, Md., for May 9 to give a talk on the flag at Hull Memorial Church. This church was erected with a clause in the deed reserving the second Sabbath in May of each year for patriotic services. This is called "Patriots' Day," and the programme is entirely patriotic. Mrs. Ball, accompanied by the drill team of the I. W. B. Flag Association, will go to Germantown, Va., on Thursday next to present a flag to the school of which Miss Mary Millan is teacher. On Friday the same party will go to Cameron, Va., where Mrs. Ball will give Miss Sarah Baker's school a flag. The flag association will hold a special session to-morrow.

MAY DAY AT SHORE

Balmy Breeze Makes Boardwalk Popular Place.

Atlantic City Hotel Men Rejoicing at Efforts to Secure Beach as a Public Park—Authorities Are Endeavoring to Regulate Rolling Chairs—Names of Some of Washington Visitors.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 1.—May Day finds the seashore through blossoming beneath a combination of sunshine and shower and balmy breezes that make the Boardwalk a perfect place of delight. Furs and semi-winter garbs have been thrown to the winds, and the bathing crowd is beginning to revel in the advance glories of summer.

During the past three days nearly everybody who is anybody has gone to the golf links, where the Atlantic City Country Club's annual spring tourney closed this afternoon. Travis and Fowles and 128 other players of more or less note and from nearly every golf club in the East were there and entertained a gallery of at least 500 each morning and afternoon.

Luncheon parties to the clubhouse at Northfield, a pretty little suburb of this city, fourteen minutes away by trolley, were given by a number of the hotel visitors, and although the clubhouse is large, its capacity was well tested. Barring a cold and somewhat stiff breeze on the opening day, the weather was good on the links, and also excepting a trifling shower, which fell at noon on the second day, but which was scarcely heavy enough to affect the play on the green. The entries in the tourney were as heavy as in any of the former golf gatherings here, and the general interest was greater than ever.

Beach as Public Park.

Hotel men are rejoicing over the stand taken by the New Jersey courts, which are supporting the city in securing its beach as a public park. A day or two ago condemnation commissioners awarded a beach front owner a title over 12,000 for absolute title to 135 feet of frontage. The owners promptly appealed, but the Supreme Court refused to permit a transfer to the United States courts, to which removal was sought because one of the owners was a resident of Pennsylvania.

The beach front purchase is furnishing much criticism of the methods pursued by the city's law department, for it is just leaking out that less than two weeks ago the city paid $15,000 for ordinary parkway rights, which do not convey absolute title at all, in front of property of about the same value as the property for which complete title was taken for $2,000. There are threats of an investigation and prosecution, and a scandal seems to be almost ripe, if not quite so already.

As a sample of how beach front values are soaring a little strip of land abutting the Boardwalk, nineteen feet in width, brought $5,000, or $2,600 per front foot. No buildings were included. This land, on the tax assessment books, bears a valuation of $2,300 per front foot.

Regulate Rolling Chairs.

The authorities have endeavored to regulate the popular rolling chairs, in which probably every visitor who ever came here has taken a ride at some time or other. There are more than 2,500 chairs, and sometimes they become a nuisance to pedestrians. In order to prevent their increase, and incidentally to produce more city revenue, a tax of $100 has been placed upon each roller chair office or stand. There are about thirty of these stands, but instead of having the desired effect of cutting down the number of chairs, several of the roller chair "barons," as they are called, have ordered scores more of chairs, many of them larger in size than the old ones, and hence will occupy more of the Boardwalk. The Boardwalk is legally a public street, and consequently the chair cannot be prohibited, and the city administration does not know exactly what to do, and the visitors are enjoying the dilemma and patronizing the chairs more liberally than ever before.

The annual convention of the Federation of Women's Clubs opens here on May 7 for three days. Headquarters are located at Hotel Chelsea, and more than 100 well-known women, some of them identified with the suffrage movement, will be here. The New Jersey State Encampment of the G. A. R. opens at the Chalfonte on May 20. President Taft is to be invited to attend, inasmuch as the next national encampment, in 1910, is to be held in this city. The veterans from this State, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, and New York will participate in the parade on May 20.

WILL WAR ON ALLEY MENACE.

District Would Eliminate All Which Endanger Health.

From this time forward the engineer department of the District government will co-operate with Commissioner West, who has charge of the street cleaning department, in eliminating alleys which are narrow and winding, ill-ventilated, and unkept, and which are a menace to health.

An effort will be made to do away with the private alley; that is, alleys where the District ostensibly has no jurisdiction. The owners will be asked to deed these lands to the city, and also a slight margin of additional length, which will permit the widening of the alleys so as to comply with the proper sanitary measures.

Alleys should be at least nine feet wide, says Engineer Commissioner Judson. If it is impossible to effect this reform, he believes that the owners should be held responsible for the cleanliness of the lanes. A hearing will soon be held by the Board of Commissioners as to whether real estate interests shall be permitted to open up subdivisions without providing for alleys.

EAGLES READY FOR CL. OUS.

Plans for a carnival of the city are being rapidly completed by the Eagles of Washington. Beginning to-morrow when the gates of the show grounds on the site of the old Baltimore and Ohio station are thrown open the local organization will hold court for their friends in a two weeks' frolic.

Hundreds of electric bulbs will cover the grounds, and with yards of multi-colored bunting will serve as a background for the Ferris wheel and numerous other attractions.

Mingled with the roar of wild animals from the menagerie section, several bands will be on hand to enliven the festivities.
